Banks renew Maynilad bond

Despite bail, Oakwood mutineers still detained

By Nicanor Piles and Philip C. Tobias

PHILIPPINE who participated in last year's failed Odeon mutiny are still in military custody despite having gained bail by a Manila City court.

Armed forces of the Philippines spokesman Lt. Col. Daniel Laceran said the 37 soldiers who were granted bail by Manila Regional Trial Court Judge Jose Francisco are still facing charges in the military court.

"But, they cannot be released from detention," Laceran said in a statement released yesterday.

"Although they have posted over 27 millions, this does not in any way affect their court case," Laceran said.

Col. Rufus Magno, officer-in-charge of the AFP's Office of the Judge Advocate General, said their denial of bail for the leaders of the mutiny was a decision of the military court. Capt. Gerardo Candia, Capt. Mike Macatangay, and Lt. Jap. Alvin Villano IV "showed that the evidence against them was strong."

Another accused, Capt. John Andrew, is still at large.

Magno said the AFP would file a motion for reconsideration, on the argument that granting bail to "military personnel against the Articles of War and military justice does."

FOREIGN banks have renewed the $126 million performance bond of Maynilad Water Services that was set to expire at the end of the month, outgoing Junior Undersecretary Wilfredo Tendencia said yesterday.

Inclusion made the announcement in the absence of the government as they were to withdraw the bond next today.

"The banks have notified the Metropolitan Waterworks Engineering Agency and the Department of Finance of their unconditional renewal of the bond for another year to July 2005," Tendencia said.

The performance bond, which Maynilad was required to pay up when it obtained the concession to supply water services to the western half of the island, was an undertaking that the local-owned utility was able to complete the job it came in the form of an increase in the steady flow of assets with a number of foreign banks, led by Citicorp International.

The bond was supposed to expire on July 31 after Maynilad failed to secure it in June.

The AFP's barbed wire along the highway to withdraw from the island after Maynilad failed to pay its concession fee which had ballooned to $18 million, it was stopped from doing so by the Queen City court leaving the establishment and debt problem of Maynilad.

Just last month, the Supreme Court denied the latest suit and said the government could not withdraw from the bond.

The AFP's bond recently made withdrawal the center $20 million as the capital concession fee has grown to $18 million as of May 31, it has sent July 31 to be paid.

"The full story is certain and is being coordinated with the DOP which will determine its value as a new rehabilitation or takeover plan," Tendencia said.

Tendencia said the government paid that rather significant aid with Maynilad and its credit bonds to hammer out the concession agreement, known as amendments 2 to Maynilad's concession agreement, that would put the way for a government takeover of the water utility.

The National Economic and Development Authority earlier recommended the termination of the concession agreement and the AFP's is now for including a new takeover plan for the Maynilad concession and would allow the government to take back the $1.26 performance bond without disruption of water services.

Maynilad officials have provided the termination of the agreement, meaning that the government's unilateral withdrawal of the concession would only lead to further disputes which would mean 3 months to process.

During President Secretary Antonio Bautista said the government should include the terms in the concession agreement that had become more after the EC ruled that governments could withdraw from the bond.

PNP chief 'wannabes' forge agreement

By Christian F. Figueroa

PNP OFFICIALS agreeing to become the new chief of the Philippine National Police yesterday forged a "preliminary agreement" to prevent the reason from dividing the organization.

The agreement was coordinated by a meeting involving among Deputy Director General Edgardo Aguirre and Vilma Gil, Director General de Leon, Enrique Salas and Arlene Nolasco, and Chief Insp. David Calalang in Camp who participated in the President.

Aguirre, the most senior of the generals vying for the job, admitted that he was hoping to succeed PNP chief General Romeo B. Sinagbang. He said, "I'll be going," he said.

Aguirre's proper, however, should include the early intervention of his law. Otherwise, he said, he would decide to stay as until he mandatory retirement on Dec. 30, Aguirre and Salas, who are both scheduled to retire before the end of the year, would have their chance to head the police agency.

But even if Salas was denied before Aguirre's scheduled retirement in September, the latter would still have to deal with the promotion in the PNP law that has officers with less than six months left in the service but having no pensionable age now.

But Aguirre yesterday found a supporter in former Justice Secretary Jose Calalang, who has been backing the former's campaign against Sinagbang.

Gov't mum on biting New York Times editorial

By Benigno Aquino III

In his government, "the Philippines, after all, fears a number of serious people on its own territory and officials of its various security agencies. It is not as if we are government to be blacklisted by someone else standing in policies, but it seems especially in order for Manila to be doing so," the newspaper said.

Under other countries

The New York Times compared Mr. Aquino's decision to withdraw to those of other countries that have long on their own terms.

It said, "Spain and some Latin American countries had every right to exercise their sovereign judgment that it was best to leave low, but their decisions, unlike President Aquino's, were not driven by innocent demands."

The New York Times noted that leaders of the United States, South Korea and Bulgaria went through "unpleasant negotiations" when their citizens taken hostage in Iraq were released as a result of their refusal to exercise the long-standing demands.

"But President Aquino decided himself to withdrawing the would actually do something about the situation, and has even allowed the kidnappers to alter Filipino policy. One can understand the desire to save a life, but Manila's concern will only place all other hostages at risk of being in greater peril," the newspaper said.

It added, "We are not arguing that other countries had every right to the black administration. If anything, President Aquino's decision shows the peril of assembling a coalition of weak allies to put in place Washington but lacking much experience in the human element."

It also said Mr. Aquino was "seriously not helping the kidnappers with her decision." In a July 15 report on the hostage crisis, the newspaper said Mr. Aquino confirmed to give in to the kidnappers' demands because "the risk of disappointing Washington, her most important ally, was easily outweighed by the potential political and economic agenda for the next campaign."

July 13: The kidnappers say they want a sign of Philippine commitment and all its troops must be out by July 20 before Da la Cruz is released. After Cabinet meeting, the Philippines says it is sticking to its Aug. 20 schedule of pullout. Sen. Tomas and (in the case of the wife, Araceli, from his daughter, Jordan).

July 12: The kidnappers extend deadline by three hours and say Da la Cruz has been moved to a place of execution. Washington says US Secretary of State Colin Powell has called up the Aquino to ensure this is not so.

July 12: A Philippine official is quoted as saying "if weapons are withdrawn, no more is possible." Manila imposes news blackout. Washington seeks explanation and expresses disappointment.

July 11: Manila says it is coordinating the pullout of its forces and the local cause of its withdrawal is already down from 30 to 40. Australia says the rest of the Coalition of the Willing in Iraq will "pay the price" if the Philippines withdraws.

July 11: Da la Cruz, in new video, with his family he will be home soon. The kidnappers say he will be released when the last Filipino prisoner is given by end of July, and another civilian injured.

July 10: Manila says it is more pro-peace, even heading home, headed by the leader of the kidnappers.

July 10: A Philippine diplomat says Cabinet members are saying this is a trap to save the entire withdrawal before the State of the Nation Address in Congress on July 20. Da la Cruz's wife, Araceli, tells labor officials "it's over. He's going home."

July 10: Foreign Secretary Lito Abaya says the remaining members of Philippine contingents will pay a farewell call on Monday on their Polish commander before leaving the base, signifying a complete pullout of Filipino troops from Iraq.

July 10: The Philippines fighting over the US-Cong in Manila, ends of Baghdad, since late last year is lowered for the last time. With several more and double up again, the last 24 Filipino troops leave Iraq, completing the pullout of the Philippine-Somalia force.

Anti-AIDS drive in AFP, PNP urged

the Managing S. Edwards

THREE members of the armed forces have been infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV), according to the country's agency of confirmed cases, and nine more are unconfirmed cases.

Because of this, the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS) periodically urged the government to beef up its education campaign on the virus...which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS)—among vulnerable personnel, which has been identified as a “hazardous sector” in the Philippines.

The 40th county dominates the Philippines' 61. Gina Harwood said that like numerous Filipino workers, which account for 32 percent of all cases, the police and military wear a tale of respecting the rules because of the nature of their jobs.

Three million men were included in the HCV/AIDS inquiry in the last 10 years but their identities, health and employment status, and race specific remain confidential. They were classified simply as "self-reporting users."

"This is alarming not just in the USAMRIID but in everyone, specifically to the general public," Broussard said in an interview at the HPAAC's offices in Manila yesterday.

"If you have three confirmed cases, then the next ones there are many more accidental cases," he said. This was one reason the USAMRIID had been encouraging 100-000 education for the Philippine National Police and the Armed Forces of the Philippines since 1996.

For every one confirmed WHO MEK case, there are three unconfirmed cases, the Department of Health said, adopting the equivalent by the World Health Organization.

Freed Egyptian says he was treated well

CAIRO—An Egyptian truck driver held hostage for two weeks was freed by insurgents Monday, saying he was treated well and asking his family to forgive him for everything.

Muhammad Almaghrabi was reported captured July 5 when a group calling itself the Iraqi Brigades kidnapped him. He was brought into the Egyptian Embassy Monday evening, witnesses said.

Almaghrabi said he was moved to "an Islamic mansion, 100 persons" and well and ultimately given to his captors' new master of the Iraqi resistance and did not include any foreign fighters.

Almaghrabi's family expressed its celebration on hearing of his release. His wife, Laila, advised, "We are praying for him." His two children are in Egypt and when released by his captors, he will return to his home in the Nile Delta town of Zagazig, about 100 kilometers from Cairo.

Almaghrabi's wife said she last spoke to her husband soon after his release. He said only "Thank God and I am coming home. God willing," she said "Thank God, thank God."

The family said it did not know when Almaghrabi would be coming home, but planned to slaughter a lamb or cow in celebration whenever he did.

The Egyptian, who gave detailed interviews to his home in Zagazig during an interview, said his captors were "treating him as a brother." He said he was treated well and did not include any foreign fighters.

Almaghrabi's family expressed its but not been bringing anyone to the US from here, so the military said it was.

"We are waiting for the military, and waiting for the military," he said. "We are waiting for the military, and waiting for the military." He said he was treated well and did not include any foreign fighters.

France, Israeli raw escalates

PARIS—France and Israel Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's relationship is set to worsen due to the Paris and Jerusalem community saying French Jews to emigrate to Israel to escape "the Jewish state's policies" in a speech by President Jacques Chirac. The speech was a warning to Israel to stop its policies in the West Bank and Gaza.

Clinton adviser probed on terror memo

WASHINGTON—A newly leaked memo, President Bush's cabinet secretary's office is under criminal investigation by the Justice Department after highly classified terrorism documents disappeared after it was examined by the Justice Department's office. The memo was a warning to Israel to stop its policies in the West Bank and Gaza.

Blast kills 25 in Ukrainian coal mine

2007—the explosion ripped through a Ukrainian coal mine, killing at least 25 miners and trapping 11 more in a bloody pit in the country's largest mining district in two years, the emergency ministry said on Tuesday.

Prime Minister Viktor Yushchenko, former governor of Ukraine's coal-producing Donetsk region, said major companies in a forthcoming election schedule, now due to end August here in the day. The accident at the Borszhany mine, 100 km west of Donetsk, was the latest in a long series of tragedies plaguing the industry. About 250 miners died last year in Ukraine.

"Twenty-five people are dead. Their bodies were found in the emergency room. Survivors are still looking for 11 coalminers," said a duty officer at the emergency ministry.

A military official in Donetsk said more than 40 miners began to be rescued with other equipment in the pit, which is 1,200 meters deep.

Investigations built almost 30 years ago in one of Ukraine's most productive mines, but have been struck by deadly accidents. In January 2002, 100 miners were killed, with four more dying in the following days.

Forty-eight miners were working when the methane explosion occurred here on Monday night, a Ukrainian television newspaper, lack of funds and shoddy safety conditions.

Mine workers are small, doing more than 1,200 meters below the surface. There are lots of miners working, drilling, mining, methane detectors, to check them in safety.

Supporters were taken to hospital to pay for transportation. The explosion killed 25 miners without adequate compensation.

Investigations, however, President Leonid Kuchma's, Chief of State once been told after the October election, has promised to pay more money and other benefits to miners.

Sudan jails 10 militants

Dim sum is his insurance for a successful life

By Carlo G. Garcia

WHILE IT WAS THE DIM SUM that first drew him to his beloved, Marissa S. Manao, it now has helped him build a successful life. Being identified with and getting better known for the late food business, Manao is founder and president of R & B Food Corporation, owner of Dim Sum, the popular food chain noted for its delicious dim sum. He has been in insurance for over 40 years and is president of his own insurance brokerage firm, Manila Insurance Resources Corporation (MIR).

"To a great extent, his experience in insurance may have indirectly helped Manao's entrepreneurial skills, and may have also laid the groundwork for his success in an enterprise."

Insurance background

Chronologically, How Lee came first... it was founded in 1960. But, though MIR came much later, for Manao, it was the realization of a lifelong dream. He says, "I grew up MIR 12 years ago, following my graduation from Universal Insurance Co. president. I chose to retire early because I felt the company had changed." Manao was connected with Universal Insurance, a member of the Apollo Insurance Group, from 1971 to 1991, serving as administrative vice president, senior manager, managing vice president and finally, president for domestic market, a position he held until he left the company in 1991.

"My foreign friends helped me acquire MIR," remembers Manao. "I'm proud to say that it's one of the most respected in the field today." As his friends, they sit in a room, he has been insurance and insurance companies and are paid for a fee or commission. "MIR has its own rules," says Manao, who, incidentally, earned his first job in insurance as a junior clerk at the PNB Insurance Group, another Apollo subsidiary. He was then a health care college student at the De La Salle University (DLSU), where he obtained a degree in commerce. "I stayed with PNB after graduation and rose to become assistant chief of the company's Bonds Department. My big break came when I was assigned to Universal Insurance."

Commitment to values

Highlighting his 33 years with Apollo, Manao says he stayed because he liked the culture and the values the company upheld. "I try to instill the same values in my employees." There were also the excitement of meeting people and the opportunity for learning and collaboration.

Manao is a professional's game, one made Manao. "I had a lot of time to learn, but my main challenge for me was carrying the trust and confidence of clients and being able to serve their needs." Perhaps the most important thing he learned in insurance was professionalism. At the same time, he discovered the value of honesty in business.

But Lee, whose empire and entire family have come to love, was established 23 years ago. Manao is founder. "It all started when my wife and I were offered a small more space in BP Pangasinan. These were hard and we needed the extra income. But, we didn't know what to do."

Authentic dim sum

They finally settled on dim sum, upon the suggestion of a Filipino-Chinese friend who was in the restaurant business. "We used to buy our supply of dim sum from this friend's restaurant. But in time, we realized we had to make our own. Another friend, a chef in Hong Kong, provided us with recipes for authentic dim sum," says Manao, pointing out that through expert instruction they were able to perfect their because they were selling Chinese products, they wanted to appeal Chinese, reminds Manao. They chose Chinese for their corporate name because it sounded Chinese enough. In truth, however, it's a combination of the names of Manao's youngest son and daughter: Henry and Iris (the spelling had to be changed for obvious reasons).

Building up an outlet at the BP Supermarket in Makati proved to be a turning point for his business. They soon had another one at SM North Edo and later on at SM Westgate. They've been a part of BP's core team. "We grew up with BP," Manao likes to say. But Lee Manao is a family corporation in 1998 and started branching five years ago. Today, there are more than 100 How Lee outlets, and the Manao family

Uncovering Baguio's history via stamps

By Maria Cristina
Baguio City

A Hobby that helped send him to medical school also helped him write the first book about the Philippine summer capital's history through stamps he has collected for decades.

In Charles Cheng's first person to ever write such a book, finding the link stamps to his collection of stamps that dates back to his childhood, the late father introduced him to a hobby which, according to his father, had the stamp not only school boys but kings as well. Cheng's mother is another, Barbara, because she made history demands when they were and recently founded "Baguio Stamp Through History-Philippines."

Complete with stamps photographed from Cheng's collection, the 104-page book traces in Baguio and the Cordillera's history as it unfolds this within the history of the whole archipelago. The book tells about the Spaniards' first meeting with native Tagalog and Ibaloi people in Baguio and the Cordillera's history as it unfolds. It also tells about what lived both Spanish and American influences in Baguio and the Cordillera—the intricate history in its varied resources, particularly gold.

Cavaliers, Queens ruled

The book presents the evolution of the postal service system during the Spanish regime. At first, the Spanish colonial and municipal governments employed unpaid "baguio" as carriers to deliver mail to the town or to the Cordillera. On Dec. 7, 1880, Spanish Governor General de Llanos issued a decree that called for the establishment of a postal service system. The system became a postal office on Dec. 7, 1884.

At that time, the postal service system was established in the Cordillera and the Cordillera system that relied on carriers to deliver mail. The Cordillera system was the same way that the Cordillera mail service shared the special of communication service. And the Cordillera system was the first system during the Spanish period that was spread up the Cordillera. One of them was (Charles) E. Cheng, the daughter of King John E. in his second wife, Isabel of Portugal.

Baguio is the center of the Cordillera's cultural life and the Cordillera's cultural life. Cheng and Barbara discovered how Baguio's and the Cordillera's history has unfolded within the few stamps that came after the Cordillera's and the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history.

Cordillera's history

The book perfectly puts into light Baguio's history. The book tells about the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history.

The book, for example, tells about how Baguio's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history. The Cordillera's history is the Cordillera's history.

We salute our leaders

For the past 56 years, PNB has made big contributions to develop the country's economy—in the aftermath of two world wars and succeeding periods of challenges.

Its trailblazing spirit has also drawn and molded some of the best minds who eventually turned leaders to many of the best-run companies here and abroad.

On its 56th Anniversary, PNB continues to pursue its mission and vision with renewed zeal. It also remains a fertile ground for innovative ideas—and the nation's future leaders.

PNB salutes its past and present leaders in a first ever Grand Alumni Homecoming on July 23, 2004, 6PM at its present home at the PNB Financial Center, along Pres. Diosdado Magawang Boulevard, Pasig City, Metro Manila.

PNB alumni may wish to RSVP at 02-8462-1533 or 02-8462-1534.

Euphoria sweeps town, grand welcome set

"I'm happy I have my brother," declared the Mayor, a younger son of Angulo's. "I'll be like you in the village when he comes, and I'll be like you in the village."

Willo de la Cruz, Angulo's younger brother who is also an overseas worker, arrived in the village on Monday night to join the family in welcoming him.

On Angulo's return to the country, his eight children who had been staying in a villa at the Clark Special Economic Zone during the earlier hostage crisis will be taken to the Ninoy Aquino International Airport to be reunited with their parents, Lepid said.

He said the De la Cruz family would then call on his friends in Malakal.

Nextel plans P1-B rights offer to fund expansion

By Clarissa S. Balleo

TELECOMMUNICATIONS firm Nextel Mobile Inc. plans a P1-billion stock rights offering this year to fund its expansion program.

Next Mobile president Mel Talaris said the bulk of the proceeds would be used to expand its network over the next two years to 15 urban areas, including Cebu, Davao, Iloilo, Cagayan de Oro and Zamboanga.

Part of the money would also be used to fine-tune its current network, which reaches about 25,000 subscribers.

Next Mobile claims to be the country's first and only fully integrated digital mobile operator.

It provides enhanced digital two-way radio, mobile communications and data services.

Next Mobile planned to increase its subscribers by 20,000 this year, bringing it closer to hitting its maximum capacity of 200,000 within three years.

Next Mobile is a private law firm of independent advisors, plan and process. It formed based on clients in need of the combined two-way radio, phone and data communication.

Talaris added that the rights offering would come at the heels of its backdoor listing on the Philippine Stock Exchange, through majority owner Premier Investment Productions Inc.

Talaris said the company would then be known as Next Communications.

PEP acquired 99 percent of Next Mobile through a share swap deal in September last year.

Under the agreement, PEP acquired 13.76 million of the (then) firm's common shares for P2.26 billion.

In exchange, PEP issued 15.76 million common shares to Next Mobile shareholders.

Next Mobile is owned by a consortium of Premier Investments Inc., Australia, and Philippine investors led by Telecel.

The other head, PEP is owned by Top Mgmt. Partners Ltd., Australia. Holdings Ltd., Australia, holds 49.99 percent of Next Mobile. PEP and Next Mobile are both listed on the Philippine Stock Exchange.

PEP also aims to conduct an open-house meeting with analysts and investors. Talaris said he will be the main contact person for the information and will provide technology details.

There's something about Surigao

The province has earned the title 'Surfing Capital' of the Philippines, and not because people there go online a lot.

By Michael Guals
 PDI Correspondent

GOVERNOR Lyndon Barbares has described Surigao as one of the "Jewel on Earth" left undiscovered and underpriced.¹

This is true. The rich and unspoiled beauty of the different municipalities all lead to paradise. Traveling to the different towns may be long and tiring, but there's all worth it.

Many indeed abound in this place that may attract, in 5 to 10 years' time, people everywhere for tourism.

Composed of three major islands, Surigao has easily earned the title "Surfing Capital" of the Philippines because of its fantastic waves and annual surfing competitions.

Surfer's paradise

From the Garden Pavilion, where we were booked, we went to Pangasinan Island, a new beach town aside from the mainland. It is impossible to draw the beach without seeing the events fascinating and amazing. There were simply too many things to see, do and experience here.

One hour for the overnight stay on Pangasinan was Papaguan. Staying here costs a few hundred dollars a night, but if it's complete rest and relaxation you're looking for, this is the place—the only place, I might add—to be. It consists of several large and cozy cottages of colorful fabric design, often a bar and recreation area. My friends and I garden with a spectacular view of the sea, untouched Surigao.

LEAVE the city behind and find comfort in nature.

A PIECE of heaven placed paradise.

Cloud 9 is where the annual surfing competitions are held. It is, of course, where the waves are so good. There wasn't much surf and not many surfers when we got there, but once in the water, we could tell the waves could indeed get really rising.

The locals weren't really sure how Cloud 9 got its name. Some said the Surigaos who discovered the place was using Cloud 9 (the classic back, white, reefing). Others claimed the waves here could reach one foot high. Whatever—the place simply lifted you up.

Naked island

For those who enjoy the sea more than the sun, Naked Island is the best choice. But no, despite its name, there are no naked women or bachelors living around it.

The island, or later with really it, is a small strip of sand and nothing else—just a single palm tree to protect you from the sun.

Another destination to enjoy is Tubodan, a small, actually a natural landing in a lagoon with several little and more caves. The entrance is half submerged in water and is only accessible during low tide.

Despite our group's wandering on this small boat in the water, we could easily slip through the narrow passage, as it felt like to enter as it was already high tide. We would have run the risk of getting stuck there overnight.

But we managed to do a Spring-Break inside the cave and catch friendly jellyfish with our bare hands.

Bring home the fish

When shopping for fresh fish in Surigao, forget about boats, crabs and handfish. Instead, grab a big fish and head for the privilege.

After the government started to be stricter in the fish market, I could not stop talking about the fish. It was so good it almost tasted like beef.

In the market, I got the best bargain for fresh fish—two large fish for less than $200. The fish, with the red and head, were the length of computer keyboards. Imagine that, that's no pun, because most fish are coming only a fraction of the price in Manila.

Surigao can be reached directly from Manila via the Asian Trip is also from. What are you waiting for?

SURIGAO is a place for appreciating beauty and interacting with creatures of the sea.

Tired of waiting for a problematic ex-GF

EMAIL: Mark and Jay,

September has put my girlfriend back up with me because of her family's financial problems. I want to admit that up to now, I've still had more fun in love matches.

I asked her for another chance to work things out between us. She told me she still loved me, and I could feel that she did expect my offer because of her problems.

She told me she was scared that I might get hurt again, and that she couldn't promise me anything.

I love this girl so much more than anything else in this world, and I really can't afford to lose her. Her problem would still be a problem with or without the relationship. I want to show and support her in any way I can just to show how much I care for and love her.

I'm willing to wait, but until when? It's been a year now, and I'm getting tired. How long do I have to wait for her? What should I do?

SAMUEL

The thing with waiting is that sometimes, you don't know when, what or where you're waiting for something. In the real world, you must wait more and get more impatient, like those heavy Japanese restaurants called to join the top 10, while the restaurant owner is waiting for someone else.

I think the problem, you're expecting her to get back with you despite the fact that she already told you she couldn't promise you anything.

You say you love this girl more than anything else in the world. You say you can't afford to lose her. But you are willing to wait, but how long are you willing to wait and wait more?

If you feel she's not worth all the waiting or that she's been giving you a long list of excuses, maybe you can then have yourself to let go and live your life without someone else.

Maybe the love is with you.

MARK

It's a battle between love and pride, but love would happily swallow pride for a little love. Others would do just the opposite.

The catch is, you can never tell when your relationship will end. But if you want a girl, I'll give you one. She can be love with a girl who has a lot of pride. I should know. I have one in my house.

Now, with that bit of knowledge, do you have a choice that what you need to do is, more important, what you want to happen?

LET ME HEAR YOUR VOICE.

How would you know this girl, anyway? Is she the "tall, dark, and handsome" type? Because there are girls out there who are strong, even tough, but are actually really kind when you take them up to their "Love, no more" level.

Maybe, there are guys who give you just enough "love" to keep you from being someone in the process. Do you know your relationship well enough to be sure that this is not the case with her?

My guess is, I don't know who this girl is and how worthy she is of the sacrifice you're making. I can only give you some advice as to help you keep your perspective.

If you think she's worth the wait, then by all means wait for her. But if you are already feeling impatient, all your waiting in the world won't change her mind.

It's not a matter of how much longer you'd have to wait, either. One day, two years—that is just up to you to decide but be her "Thou shalt not" when she says so.

If all that just makes you feel more frustrated and powerless, then here's an important reminder: You need to get to the heart of this deal.

You can tell her goodbye, walk away and find another girl in love.

Personally, I think this is the way to go. But then, I really have no say in the matter. You'd only see it if and when you want it.

BE SPIDER-MAN!

At Pink Panda in Boracay, you can forget about sea and sand and learn the art of wall climbing instead

By Margie Alonzo-C. Tio
2007 Correspondent

FORGET the sun, the sea, the beach, the strong winds and swaying palms as you make the schedule room.

On top of getting a nice tan and getting yourself for your date's drink, whenever the mood, instructor presents a wide variety of activities to keep you logging the time.

All around the new look is a room at Pink Panda. The heart of the club is a strong invitation to your every fantasy—from intense heart rates, exercises and water sports up to jet skiing, parasailing, diving and snorkeling, to island hopping (Crystal Cove, Cinnamon Island and the famed Pink beach).

The night is filled with a variety of limited, "King Lines," tickets and local tourists look on the challenge of seeing tonight's special for the weekend children.

Just before, the competition begins and offers an array of Pink Panda's recreation center, especially with climbing wall special.

THEY make them Pink Panda special

"Well, physically it's a lot with flexibility and upper body strength. In the same time, it's also mentally demanding. When you climb, it's really harder to control a puzzle. You can put up, and you have to read your way to the top... simply put, climbing takes a lot of physical and mental discipline," he said.

"If you love the outdoors, you'll probably enjoy wall climbing. It's a fun way to challenge yourself and have a great workout."

READY for action

them as well as others. Instead of going to the gym (which could prove to be boring for some), you could work out at the wall-climbing facility and try different routes. It's not only healthy, and you get to progress in many different levels. You could even find yourself using not natural skills with a great sense of fun," he added.

Another tip for beginners emphasized "training, training, training." One really useful suggestion is to know what to do in the morning.

For those who are new to the sport, he stressed, making it a habit to go to the gym regularly when you want to exercise.

For most of all, "just have fun," he said. That, in the end, is the most important tip.

The winner of Pink Panda's wall-climbing contest was...

Women's category—first place: Tina Yu (long Island Beach Resort), second place: Bianca (Long Beach Resort), third place: Kathleen (Long Beach Resort) (first school teacher).

Men's category—first place: Andrew (Long Beach Resort), second place: Tommy (Long Beach Resort), third place: Robert (Long Beach Resort).

GRAB! You can jump at you in the most unexpected places.

On a quick jaunt from a airport shopping, a beach inside a little mall in Laguna caught our attention. There were watches and bracelets of all colors, bags with eye-catching designs, vest shirts and shoes. But we didn't have enough time to take a stroll, since the store was in a hurry to get home.

Brilliant idea, we had never been to one before. We looked. Yes, and things were cheap. A lot of things were in the store.

We go, into a small store, ready to watch for more goods, but a great eye for fashion took the collection and surprised and surprised.

The last part? The things are limited, as you don't have to worry about seeing someone else wearing the exact same thing.

When asked if she runs your kind of shop, she replied with a smile, "Yes."

Now that's a true fashionista.
